House of Representatives approves tax overhaul, shifts fight to Senate

U.S. President Donald Trump arrives with Director of the National Economic Council Gary Cohn at the U.S. Capitol to meet with House Republicans ahead of their vote on the "Tax Cuts and Jobs Act" in Washington

David Morgan, Amanda Becker

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The U.S. House of Representatives approved a broad package of tax cuts affecting businesses, individuals and families on Thursday, moving Republicans and President Donald Trump an important step closer to the biggest tax code overhaul in a generation. The largely party-line 227-205 vote shifted the tax debate to the U.S. Senate, where that chamber's separate plan has already encountered resistance from some Republicans. No decisive Senate action was expected until after next week's Thanksgiving holiday. Trump, who is looking for his first major legislative win since he took office in January, went to the U.S. Capitol just before the vote to urge Republicans to pass the tax measure, which Democrats call a give-away to the wealthy and businesses. "Passing this bill is the single biggest thing we can do to grow the economy, to restore opportunity, to help these middle-class families that are struggling," House Speaker Paul Ryan told lawmakers before the vote.

Congress has not thoroughly overhauled the sprawling U.S. tax code since Republican Ronald Reagan was president. The House measure is not as comprehensive as Reagan's 1986 sweeping package, but it is more ambitious than anything since then. The path forward for the tax plan in the Senate, where Republicans have a narrow majority, is fraught with political obstacles involving the federal deficit, healthcare and the distribution of tax benefits. Republicans can lose no more than two Senate votes. Senate Republican tax writers made the risky decision to tie their plan to a repeal of the requirement for people to get healthcare insurance under former President Barack Obama's Affordable Care Act. That exposed the tax initiative to the same political forces that wrecked Republicans' anti-Obamacare push earlier this year. The House bill, which is estimated to increase the federal deficit by nearly $1.5 trillion over 10 years, would consolidate individual and family tax brackets to four from seven and reduce the corporate tax rate from 35 percent to 20 percent.

FCC approves TV technology that gives better pictures but less privacy

David Shepardson

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The U.S. Federal Communications Commission voted 3-2 on Thursday to allow broadcasters to voluntarily use a new technology to improve picture quality and allow better reception on mobile phones and give advertisers dramatically more data about viewing habits. The new standard, dubbed ATSC 3.0, would allow for more precise geolocating of television signals, ultra-high definition picture quality and more interactive programming. Current televisions cannot carry the new signal and the FCC only requires broadcasting both signals for five years after deploying the next-generation technology. "That means every one of us will need to replace our television sets or buy new equipment," said Democratic Commissioner Jessica Rosenworcel. "The FCC calls this approach market driven. That's right — because we will all be forced into the market for new television sets or devices." FCC Chairman Ajit Pai defended the proposal, calling concerns about buying new devices "hypothetical." He added five years is "a long time. We'll have to see how the standard develops." Sinclair Broadcast Group Inc (SBGI) last month called the new standard "the Holy Grail" for the advertiser because it tells them who is watching and where. Last month, Democratic U.S. Representative Debbie Dingell raised privacy concerns about the data the new TVs could collect about viewers. The standard uses precision broadcasting and targets emergency or weather alerts on a street-by-street basis. The system could allow broadcasters to wake up a receiver to broadcast emergency alerts. The alerts could include maps, storm tracks and evacuation routes. The new standard would also let broadcasters activate a TV set that is turned off to send emergency alerts. One issue is whether broadcasters will be able to pass on the costs of advanced broadcast signals through higher retransmissions fees and demand providers carry the signals."

Holiday cooking class for kids

HOUSTON — The Italian Cultural & Community Center (ICCC) will host its holiday edition of La Piccola Cucina, a hands-on cultural culinary experience for children aged 3-10 years old, on Saturday, December 9, 2017 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

The children will be preparing "mezzelune alla vaniglia", moon-shaped almond and vanilla cookies topped with powdered sugar. These sweet treats, originally from Austria, can be found around all of Europe and are traditionally made at Christmas time.

Although they can be eaten as is, some wait to consume them until after two to three days, which allows the cookie to crumble slightly. Another variation is dipped in melted chocolate and set aside to cool.

Children will wear chef aprons and toques and learn basic Italian language, metric system and culture while preparing authentic Italian cuisine.

More information about the event can be found at www.icchouston.com.

About: The ICCC is a not for profit 501(c)(3) organization whose mission is to advance, celebrate and preserve Italian heritage and culture for all Houstonians to enjoy. As Houston's leading authority for all things Italian, the ICCC is proud to educate Houstonians about Italian culture, history and heritage.

Amazon is in the final stages of figuring out its strategy to get into the multibillion-dollar prescription drug market.

The company will decide before Thanksgiving whether to move into selling prescription drugs online, according to an email from Amazon viewed by CNBC and a source familiar with the situation. If it decides to make that move, it will start expanding its senior team with drug supply chain experts.

Amazon typically spends years researching opportunities before it telegraphs its intentions. The opportunity to sell drugs online is alluring given its market size -- analysts have estimated the U.S. prescription drug market at $560 billion per year. Amazon is well aware of the complexities, say sources familiar with the company's thinking.

Amazon declined to comment.

In the past year, Amazon has ramped up its hiring and consulted with dozens of people about a potential move into the pharmacy market. The consumables team, which includes groceries, kicked off the research, with the division's vice president, Eric French, taking the lead.

It brought on Mark Lyons from Premera Blue Cross to build an internal pharmacy benefits manager for its own employees, say multiple people familiar. According to one of the people, it's possible that the push into the broader drug supply chain hinges on its success with this effort.

In May, the company kicked off its search for a general manager to lead its pharmacy push, externally dubbed "healthcare."

Analyst firm Leerink has separately reported that Amazon will get into the pharmacy management space and expects an announcement within the next year or two. Goldman Sachs published a report on the topic in August of this year, speculating that Amazon will ultimately look to improve price transparency for consumers and reduce out-of-pocket costs.

Amazon already has a business selling medical supplies online, such as gauze and thermometers. It also has a health team called 1492, which is focused on both hardware and software projects, like developing health applications for the Echo and Dash Wand. Its cloud service, Amazon Web Services, continues to dominate the health and life sciences market. (Courtesy <https://www.cnbc.com/>)

Josh Umbehr is on a mission to bring down the price of prescription drugs. So he turned to the one man he believes that can do it: Amazon CEO Jeff Bezos.

Josh Umbehr (Courtesy Atlas MD)

Josh Umbehr, a Kansas-based family physician and entrepreneur, is on a mission to bring down the price of health care, starting with prescription drugs.

So for years, he's been regularly emailing the one person that he believes can make a difference.

And that's Amazon CEO Jeff Bezos. "Amazon could work with small pharmacies across the country to provide a huge value to Prime customers, on a regular basis (with short delivery times, not to mention the effect it would have on competition that over charges immensely," one of Umbehr's emails to Bezos suggests.

Umbehr says he has contacted Bezos about every other week for several years, and forwarded about half-a-dozen of these emails on request.

"I love Jeff," he said.

While Bezos has never personally responded, Umbehr's hopes soared when an Amazon employee got back to him encouraging him to submit a business proposal.

Amazon also wrote that he would hear from the company if his ideas "contributed to Amazon's business goals."

But in January 2017, Umbehr received his most detailed response informing him that his email had been forwarded along to Amazon's business development team. "Jeff has empowered talented people on this team to work closely with and make strategic decisions about these issues," the email reads.

Amazon's push into the drug supply chain

CNBC reported in May that Amazon was looking to hire a general manager to lead its potential push into pharmacy, a multibillion market. It also has brought on dozens of health and medical workers for a variety of health-related business units.

Some experts have speculated that Amazon could step into the space by focusing on those who opt to pay cash, rather than to use insurance. One such insider is Adam Fein, president of Pembroke Consulting, who has previously suggested that Amazon could support the growing number of people who are willing to pay out-of-pocket for cheap generic drugs.

For Umbehr, this strategy makes sense as the drug supply chain offers very little transparency into the actual cost of medicines.

When he's not emailing Amazon, Umbehr dedicates his time to his direct primary care practice, Atlas MD, which provides cash-only medical services like discounted drugs. He started the group in 2010, and has grown in to 3,000 patients who are willing to pay between $10 and $100 a month for unlimited work visits, home visits and procedures.

Amazon would potentially compete with businesses like his, but Umbehr said he wouldn't mind.

"I welcome the direct competition," he said. "We need a national health care solution to this problem." (Courtesy <https://www.cnbc.com/2>)

The area where the wall is proposed to be built is a refuge for 19 federally threatened and endangered species and 57 state protected species...

The prospect of a border wall between Mexico and the U.S. is now real. President Trump has requested $1.6 billion for fiscal year 2018 to build three segments totaling 74 miles...

There's a long debate over whether physical barriers on the border actually curb the illicit flow of people and drugs. The Border Patrol, which is backing Trump's plan, says they're a "vital tool" in their operation...

But what is undeniable is that the 654 miles of walls and fences already on the US-Mexico border have made a mess out of the environment there. They've cut off, isolated, and reduced populations of some of the rarest and most amazing animals in North America...

Now, DHS is eyeing unfenced areas in two Texas wildlife refuges that conservationists consider some of the most ecologically valuable areas on the border — home to armadillos and bobcats. If a wall were to slice through these ecosystems, it could cause irreversible damage to plants and animals already under serious threat...

"We've been dealing with all these negative environmental impacts of fences on the border for more than a decade," says Dan Millis of the Sierra Club Borderlands project. "And Trump's proposal would make it worse." The border region is ecologically rich because a lot of it has been federally protected...

Wall Could Cut Off A Texas Wildlife Refuge And The Habitat Of Big, Beautiful Cats

Trump's Border Wall Could Be An Ecological Disaster

Compiled And Edited By John T. Robbins, Southern Daily Editor

Mexico stretches 2,000 miles from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific Ocean. Along the way, there are three mountain chains, the two largest deserts in North America, vast cattle ranches, a handful of cities and their sprawling suburbs, and the Southern section of the mighty Rio Grande river.

Much of the region has never been heavily populated, and over the years, several large swaths of land have been designated as protected areas. Today there are 25 million acres of protected US public lands within 100 miles of the line...

On the Mexican side, meanwhile, sit protected areas like El Pinacate y Gran Desierto de Altar, which abuts the US Cabeza Prieta National Wildlife Refuge and parts of the Organ Pipe National Monument and Barry M. Goldwater Range in Arizona.

These protected areas have been established, in part, to protect wildlife and plants that span both countries. In the case of the El Pinacate and Cabeza Prieta, desert species like the Sonoran pronghorn (an antelope relative) have been able to migrate back and forth. But in recent years, that's gotten harder with the construction of long sections of vehicle barriers and fences...

"People think of deserts as barren lands and flat sand dunes with nothing there," Sergio Avila, a conservation scientist at the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, says. "But deserts are very diverse and rich in life."

Saguaro cacti, or "giant cacti," and ocotillo cactus (in bloom) in the Organ Pipe National Monument park in the Sonoran Desert.

The protected areas on the border harbor an incredible array of wildlife and plants

When you trace the border from west to east (as this Story Map project by Krista Schlyer did), you find shrinking pockets of remarkable biological abundance. At the far west is the Tijuana Estuary, a key salt marsh habitat for some 400 species of migrating birds.

At the far east, birds and butterflies stop through the Lower Rio Grande Valley, which is also a permanent home for colorful mammals, reptiles, and amphibians.

"There are tropical animal species in some of these canyons that are not found anywhere else," says Jesse Lasky, a biologist at Penn State who has studied the impact of border fences on border species. "They inhabit these little slices of tropical ecosystem that creep up into the US near the Gulf coast."

Border fences have been terrible for wildlife and plants

Since 1994, the US government has been erecting barriers to keep people and drugs from Mexico and beyond out. By 2010, about one-third of the border had been fenced with materials ranging from barbed wire to steel, bollard to wire mesh, and chain link.

All of this construction has sliced and diced a lot of protected land along the border. And ever since the passage of the Real ID Act of 2005, DHS has had the power to waive most environmental reviews in the name of national security.

So, unlike most federal infrastructure projects, these fences have received little or no input from the public, land managers, conservation groups, or other agencies. Experts had no chance to assess beforehand what impact the fence might have on wildlife, plants, and rivers.

But what evidence we do have is alarming. For instance, Lasky and his co-authors found that the biggest risk comes when fences bisect the range of a small population of a species with a specialized habitat, leaving the majority of the population on one side and the others adrift.

Cutting off animal populations in this fashion leads to reduced gene flow and inbreeding — leading to a greater risk of extinction. Conservation groups are particularly worried about the Mexican gray wolf; in 2016, there were just 113 in the US and about three dozen south of the border.

Mexican gray wolves are the most endangered wolf in the world. In 2016, there were just 113 in the US and about three dozen south of the border.

Fences also can restrict animals' access to water sources — particularly problematic in the drought-prone Southwest. And they can make it harder for animals to adapt to climate change. "A lot of species do best in Northern Mexico, but with changes in precipitation patterns, they would need to disperse across the border," says Lasky.

responding to climate change." The wall structures hurt animals and insects in other ways too. Some sections have lights that attract and zap pollinators, like the monarch butterfly, that migrate across the border.

Trump's proposed wall could have a big impact on still-pristine areas

About two-thirds, or 1,350 miles, of the border remains unfenced. Trump said on July 13 that he intends to build a total 700 to 900 miles of new wall, which will be exceedingly difficult to do.

But it's plausible that Congress will give US Customs and Border Patrol, the division of DHS in charge of border security, at least some of the $1.6 billion that Trump requested to build three segments totaling 74 miles for fiscal year 2018.

San Diego is a sprawling urban center, but just south of it is the Tijuana Estuary, where the Tijuana River meets the Pacific Ocean. It's one of the most biodiverse areas in the entire state of California.

Activists in Texas who've been tracking fence construction over the years say they think part of the new levee walls CPB would build if Congress allocates the money for them will bisect the Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge — a collection of dozens of tracts of habitat stretching from Brownsville by the Gulf of Mexico to Rio Grande City, about 100 miles west.

This area is a refuge for 19 federally threatened and endangered species and 57 state protected species, including the ocelot and other species in the illustration below. And a wall could have a serious, in some cases deadly, impact on these species.

Program seeks to train residents in CPR

The American Heart Association is seeking to train residents in northwest Harris County how to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation through its Anytime CPR program.

The Tomball Regional Health Foundation gifted the association approximately $87,000 as part of a grant train 3,000 residents how to perform CPR in Tomball, Cypress, Magnolia and Hockley by May 2018.

Marilyn Kinyo, chief administrative officer of the foundation, said that training people and putting those skills to use can save lives.

"That one person at one time could do it," Kinyo said. "You never know who that one person could be."

According to the AHA, approximately 80 percent of people who suffer from sudden cardiac arrest tend to collapse at home or work. It also estimates that nine out of 10 people don't survive due to lack of CPR performed on them.

The first training sessions are scheduled to begin on Nov. 27 and will continue through the spring, said Allie Bateman, CPR and schools manager with AHA.

She said the association is currently still reaching out to organizations, such as the Girl Scouts, Boys Scouts, churches and schools. Bateman said participants who learn this skill will be able to teach others.

"You're supposed to pass your knowledge to friends and family of what you learned from this gift," she said.

The AHA estimates up to 7,500 will have learned this skill from participants.

While the training sessions aren't certified courses, participants will receive a CPR kit that includes a mannequin that makes a clicking sound when enough pressure is applied.

"Some people are scared to push really hard because they're afraid it'll break someone's ribs," Bateman said. "It's a good indicator of how hard you should push when you do compressions."

The kit will also include a DVD to teach CPR in both English and Spanish, antibacterial wipes and brochures.

FBI Press Release

New Orleans – The FBI's New Orleans Violent Crime Task Force and the New Orleans Police Department (NOPD), are requesting the assistance of the public in locating Robert Earl Brumfield III.

Robert E. Brumfield III, a.k.a. "Lil Rob", age 24, is wanted for his alleged involvement in the 12/18/2013, Loomis armored car robbery and murder of Loomis employee Hector Trochez at the Chase Bank, located at 2331 S. Carrollton Ave., New Orleans, Louisiana.

Robert Brumfield III should be considered armed and dangerous. Anyone with information is asked to contact the FBI New Orleans Field Office at 504-816-3000.

The allegations contained in this release and related indictment is merely an accusation, and the defendant is presumed innocent unless and until proven guilty.

Loomis Armored US is offering a reward of up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest of this individual. The FBI has no involvement in the administration of this reward or any of its governing terms or conditions.

Hobby Airport gives travelers a digital welcome to Houston

By Andrea Rumbaugh

Travelers entering Houston through Hobby Airport will now receive a digital introduction to the city. A new 55-inch touchscreen interface, in the former Southwest Airlines luggage office, allows visitors to explore Houston's various neighborhoods, restaurants, arts and cultural attractions, and parks. They can create a "My Houston Bucket List" and email it to themselves.

The so-called "Houston Interactive" is a joint project by the Houston Airport System and the Houston First Corp. Staffed by volunteers, it will be open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. "Houston Interactive" encourages visitors to explore our city and create their own Houston experience," Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner said in a news release.

The Houston Technology Center, largely considered a founding father of tech startup assistance in Houston, is being folded into a new organization as part of a citywide initiative to boost Houston's appeal to technology investors and innovators. The new nonprofit, called Houston Exponential, is the culmination of countless discussions as to why the city has not built a strong infrastructure for such innovative work. Using local studies and successful models from other parts of the country, it will become the central organization connecting Houston's capital, academics, business accelerators, startups and corporations.

11月15日晚，楊冪通過微薄曬和趙又廷、周筆暢合影，並稱：“今天很开心遇到老朋友，拍了壹些自拍分享给大家。”照片中，楊冪披著壹頭長發，而身邊的夜華趙又廷笑的十分的燦爛開心，以至於臉都變模糊了。另外壹張周筆暢壹身中性裝扮，壹副酷酷的表情。之前因楊冪“嫌棄”趙又廷自拍技術不好，此次趙又廷“絕地反擊”，轉發並回應道：“至少我自拍有焦……”逗樂不少網友。

小S 大女兒長腿超過媽媽 國際巨星基因強大

據臺灣媒體報道 藝人小S（徐熙娣）經常在臉書分享壹家人的生活，和3個寶貝女兒的感情好到令人稱羨，15日特別帶著婆婆和媽媽去看老大許俏鈕和老二Lily的演出，祖孫三代5人合照曝光，立刻引起粉絲驚嘆，尤其是女兒們擁有壹雙長腿，讓網友笑說：根本長過國際小S！

事實上，許俏鈕過去就多次展現長腿魅力，小S貼出的出遊照就引起不少驚嘆，網友看到這幾張母女倆的合照後，也嘴甜直誇“孩子真的壹瞬間就長大了”、“女兒都比妳高了”、“後半生當星媽”，總是自誇是國際巨星的小S，這次愛女也被誇讚“腿長過國際巨星了”！前陣子小S還帶著3個女兒登上時尚雜誌，有趣的是，當工作人員將焦點放在愛女們身上時，她還會忍不住吃醋、跳出來爭寵：嘿，主角在這耶！畫面中，小S穿著綁帶洋裝，露出白皙香肩及性感鎖骨，和女兒壹起頂著相同復古造型的短髮，在鏡頭前各自擺出專業POSE及逗趣表情，愛女個個散發非凡的名模氣息，被讚完美遺傳老媽的巨星基因。

野花牌綠蜂膠

近年醫學研究發現，從巴西綠蜂膠中提取的 Artepillin-C (阿替匹林C) 及其結構衍生物是蜂膠中對腫瘤細胞具有殺滅作用的重要活性成分。它能夠激活免疫系統，並有直接的抗癌活性，能夠強烈抑制肺癌、腸癌、肝癌以及喉癌細胞，並能誘導人體白血病腫瘤細胞凋亡

人類肺癌細胞24小時臨床觀察
人類胃癌細胞24小時臨床觀察

野花牌綠蜂膠，使用世界領先的超臨界無酒精無蜂蠟專利萃取技術，完整保留綠蜂膠400多種天然成分，不含酒精和雜質，業界最高濃度85%、最高類黃酮含量7%、酚多體3.5%，療效確切，品質卓越，權威認證，是您和家人的健康首選。
