As inauguration nears, law enforcement scrutiny drives U.S. extremists into internet's dark corners

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - Shortly after rampaging Trump supporters attacked the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6, a fan of the president posted a message on the pro-Donald Trump website TheDonald.win. Inspired by the mob's attempt to stop lawmakers from confirming President-elect Joe Biden's electoral win, user CONN_WYNN said in an all-caps message, replete with an expletive, that it was "TIME TO LEAVE THE KEYBOARD" and "FIGHT FOR MY...COUNTRY."

Two days later, agents from the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation's San Francisco field office came calling, according to another post by CONN_WYNN on the same website.

"PRO TIP: Think before you post. They are watching. I learned the hard way," wrote the user on Sunday alongside a photograph of a business card from the agents.

A spokesman for the FBI's San Francisco office said he could not provide any details about the reported interaction or confirm whether agents actually paid a visit to the person who posted that message. But "if he has our business card and said he was visited, I'm pretty sure we visited him," the spokesman said.

Before the Capitol attack, such a post may not have elicited a follow-up visit. But in the aftermath of the riot, which left five people dead, federal law enforcement agencies have intensified their scrutiny of extremist chatter online, activity that officials warn could be early warning signals of planned attacks around Biden's inauguration in Washington on Jan. 20.

"You don't want to be the ones to have FBI agents knocking on your door at 6 a.m.," Director Christopher Wray said on Thursday during a televised briefing with Vice President Mike Pence. "Anybody who plots or attempts violence in the coming week should count on a visit."

For months, far-right extremists have been openly posting their threats on public sites. Now, wary of surveillance and amid a crackdown by social media, some are shifting their online communications to private chats or lesser known platforms that could make those threats harder to find.

Several social media websites that are popular havens for far-right views have closed, crashed or cracked down on violent rhetoric over the past week. For example, Apple [AAPL.O] and Amazon [AMZN.O] suspended the social media site Parler from their respective App Store and web hosting service, saying it had not taken adequate measures to prevent the spread of posts inciting violence.

That has pushed some users to more private platforms such as Telegram, the Dubai-based messaging app, and lesser-known social media sites like MeWe.

U.S. downloads of Telegram from Apple's App Store and from Google Play rose to 1.2 million in the week after the Capitol assault, a 259% increase over the previous week, according to Sensor Tower, a data analytics firm. Roughly 829,000 U.S. users downloaded MeWe in the week after the attack, a 697% increase, the firm found.

David Westreich, a MeWe spokesman, said the company has frequent membership spikes and that "only a small fraction" of the hundreds of thousands of public groups on the platform dealt with politics. Westreich said MeWe's terms of service were "designed to keep out lawbreakers, haters, bullies, harassment [and] violence inciters."

Telegram did not respond to a request for comment.

The FBI received nearly 100,000 "digital media tips" about potential unrest related to the election and Biden's inauguration, an official told reporters on Tuesday, and has pleaded for more information from the American public.

Jared Maples, director of the New Jersey Office of Homeland Security and Preparedness, told Reuters his office was "doubling down" on its work to track possible domestic extremist threats and "making sure we're aware of what the chatter is online."

Is This What Our Nation Decided?

When Mr. Trump became the only president impeached twice, lawmakers have been trying to remove him within the last days left in his term. A Democratic congressman accused Republican colleagues of helping the mob attack the Capitol building last week. All of this along with the ongoing pandemic made the situation catastrophically worse in the last few days of Trump's presidency.

Today more than 4,400 people died of the coronavirus in just one day. This figure is more than all the people killed at Pearl Harbor or on September 11, 2001.

Historians are trying to define this pandemic time with other periods of challenge from the Great Depression, World War II, the Civil War and the McCarthy era. Never before has the military been needed to guard the Capitol Building.

This is the first time.

As Texas Democratic representative Joaquin Castro said, "Donald Trump is the most dangerous man to ever occupy the Oval Office."

Our dear friend Congressman Al Green tells us that he was harassed by people identifying themselves as Trump supporters who shouted to him, "You are a traitor."

Republican Senator Mitt Romney was also confronted at the Salt Lake City airport and heckled while flying to Washington, D.C. last Tuesday.

The incoming Biden administration unveiled a $1.9 trillion stimulus plan that offers to help people and the economy recover from the coronavirus pandemic, including sending $1,400 checks to all households.

Before Biden even comes to power his new administration already is facing big challenges including an out of control pandemic. We really feel so sad that so many people are losing their lives. Along with all the serious political issues we face, our nation is deeply divided now.

Virus Infections Top 90 Million Confirmed Cases Worldwide

KEY POINTS

Pfizer and BioNTech raised their Covid-19 vaccine production target for this year to 2 billion shots. The previous production target was 1.3 billion doses. A World Health Organisation team of scientists is beginning a long-delayed trip to China to study the origins of the virus.

Compiled And Edited By John T. Robbins, Southern Daily Editor

COVID-19 Overview

Coronavirus infections have now surpassed 90 million confirmed cases around the world, as more countries braced for wider spread of more virulent strains of a disease that has now killed nearly 2 million worldwide. The number of infections worldwide has doubled in just 10 weeks, according to a tally by John Hopkins University on Sunday. COVID-19 infections had hit 45 million as recently as late October.

As of Sunday afternoon, John Hopkins counted 90,005,787 infections around the world.

The United States, now with more than 22.2 million infections, led the world with the highest number of infections recorded since the global pandemic began. The number of U.S. cases was more than double that of India, which has recorded nearly 10.5 million infections. Countries took drastic measures to mitigate the spread of Covid-19 on their homefront—with varying degrees of success. More than 140 governments placed blanket bans on incoming travelers, closed schools and restricted gatherings and public events, according to data compiled by Oxford University's Blavatnik School of Government and Bloomberg reporting. As countries loosen lockdowns in an effort to reboot their economies, many have seen a resurgence of infections. The number of new daily cases in the U.S. rose to record highs after some states relaxed social distancing requirements. Even places that successfully contained infections earlier in the year, like China and South Korea, have seen cases bubble back up. Theories that warmer weather in the Northern Hemisphere would bring relief appear to be unfounded.

COVID-19 NEWS FROM AROUND THE GLOBE

Key Developments

- Global Tracker: Cases top 90 million; deaths surpass 1.93 million
- Vaccine Tracker: More than 25 million shots given worldwide
- Vaccine paranoia extends even to healthcare workers
- Automakers are losing production as virus disrupts chip supplies
- UK ramps up vaccine rollout with hospitals under strain
- WHO Says Origin Studies To Begin In Wuhan
 A World Health Organisation (WHO) team of scientists is commencing a long-delayed trip to China to engage in and review scientific research with Chinese counterparts on the origins of the coronavirus pandemic. China said the team would arrive this week. "The studies will begin in Wuhan to identify the potential source of infection of the early cases," WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said at a briefing. Scientific evidence will be the basis for further long-term studies. Last week, Tedros complained about China's delay in granting visas to the team. Separately, a WHO team is in China working with producers of the Sinovac and Sinopharm vaccines to assess compliance with international quality-manufacturing practices ahead of a potential emergency-use listing. WHO officials also said they're confident the rollout in lower-income countries can begin in February, though they added that a lot depends on country readiness and companies supplying doses.

COVID-19 TOP NEWS

New Jersey using honour system for vaccines New Jersey is relying on an honour system for residents getting vaccines. Health Commissioner Judith Persichilli said. "We are trusting the integrity of all of you to do the right thing in this regard and not 'jump the line,'" Persichilli said at a virus briefing. Poland extends lockdown measures Poland will extend coronavirus lockdown measures by nearly two weeks until the end of January to get a better grip on the pandemic as the country's vaccination process begins in earnest. Hotels, ski resorts, shopping malls, restaurants and bars will remain closed, Health Minister Adam Niedzielski told a news conference on Monday. Johnson & Johnson to submit South African trial data by 21 January Johnson & Johnson's preliminary data from the South African arm of a phase 3 Covid-19 vaccine trial will be ready for submission to US regulators by 21 January, according to the head of the country's Medical Research Council. New York City eyes one million doses by month-end New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio reaffirmed his goal of doling out one million Covid-19 doses by the end of January. He said New York reached its goal of vaccinating 100,000 people last week and plans to administer 175,000 doses by the end of the week. He said 55,000 appointments have already been scheduled.

Portugal reports record fatalities Portugal on Monday reported the biggest daily increase in deaths from the coronavirus since the start of the outbreak. There were 122 new fatalities in a day, more than the previous record of 118 on Friday, taking the total to 7,925 deaths, according to government data. The number of new coronavirus infections rose by 5,604 in a day compared with a record 10,176 new cases in a day reported on Friday. New York City vaccine sign-up process is 'bewildering' New York City residents looking to get vaccines are confronting a "bewildering sign-up process" that is hindering plans to speed up inoculations, comptroller Scott Stringer said on Twitter. The city opened mass vaccination sites on Sunday in Brooklyn and the Bronx, extended shots on Monday to people 75 and over, and encouraged everyone eligible to schedule an appointment. Israel's shots are working Israel's vaccination campaign, which has already covered about 20% of its population, is producing early signs that vaccines are slowing the virus. Sheba Medical Centre's Gili Regev, director of the infection prevention and control unit, says that her study of around 500 healthcare workers vaccinated with the Pfizer-BioNTech shot is already turning the tide. Russia approves study of Sputnik Light vaccine Russia approved a 150-person study of the so-called Sputnik Light vaccine developed by the makers of the country's first registered inoculation, according to the Health Ministry. Russian President Vladimir Putin first suggested a single-dose "light version" of a coronavirus vaccination that would be less effective and offer protection for a shorter period last month to get more people inoculated faster. The Sputnik V vaccine consists of two shots taken three weeks apart. Producers have faced some issues ramping up production of the second dose. Pfizer, BioNTech boost Covid vaccine target Pfizer and BioNTech raised their Covid-19 vaccine production target for this year to two billion shots. The partners have already committed more than half that capacity, BioNTech said in a presentation filed on Monday.

Malaysia imposes targeted lockdowns to battle virus wave Malaysia will place most of the country under some form of lockdown for two weeks, starting on 13 January. While five essential sectors including manufacturing, construction and agriculture, will remain open, interstate travel will be banned throughout the country. Separately, the country will buy an additional 12.2 million doses of the Pfizer-BioNTech coronavirus vaccine. One in five in England may have caught virus As many as 20% of people in England have had the virus, according to data firm Edge Health, which works with the UK's public health service. About half of the population of the east London borough of Barking and Dagenham have had Covid-19, according to the analysis. South Africa oxygen demand surges Oxygen usage is surging in South Africa amid a new wave of coronavirus infections, leaving suppliers struggling to keep pace with demand. As infection rates and deaths reach records, Air Liquide SA, Afrox Healthcare and Air Products are boosting deliveries to hospitals, with some now taking place daily rather than weekly. London transit deaths The National Union of Rail, Maritime and Transport Workers is seeking stronger safety measures to protect Transport for London staff from the pandemic after three transit workers died in recent days. The union demanded the mayor of London and London Underground provide guarantees on worker safety, including allowing vulnerable employees to stay home if needed. N95-style masks should be available when requested, the union wrote.

China's new cluster A new cluster erupted in Suihua city of the northeastern Chinese province Heilongjiang. The city of more than five million people reported 20 asymptomatic infections after authorities tested more than 2,800 people. Health authorities are waiting for results for the rest of some 8,700 people who underwent testing after a woman tested positive at a county hospital on Saturday, Chinese News Services reported. Irish hospital pressure mounts Ireland's hospital system appeared close to being overwhelmed, as coronavirus case numbers continue to explode with a daily infection rate that's now among the highest in the world. Doctors treated patients in ambulances outside one facility in the northwest of the country over the weekend as patients suspected of having the virus filled the hospital, while intensive care beds availability has dropped to 38. New strains spread in Europe Finland reported a total of 49 cases of the UK and South African variants of the coronavirus on Monday, with the bulk of those infections detected in travelers and their close contacts in recent weeks. In Latvia, one case of the UK variant was discovered, related to a recent trip to the country. LA turns Dodger Stadium into vaccination hub Los Angeles, the epicentre of the latest wave in the US, will turn Dodger Stadium from the country's biggest Covid-19 testing site into a mass vaccination centre to inoculate as many as 12,000 people a day. The stadium ceased being a testing site on Monday, with the transition taking place by the end of the week. The Greater LA area, where one in 11 has been infected, has tested five million people, or about half of its population. With a surge in cases, Southern California and other parts of the state have run out of ICU capacity. (Courtesy <https://www.dailymaverick.co.za/>)

Federal Debt Tops $27 Trillion for First Time National Debt

Compiled And Edited By John T. Robbins, Southern Daily Editor

(CNSNews.com) - The US national debt has just reached 120.5 percent of the nation's annual economic output...

It then climbed another trillion dollars in just 35 days, topping $26 trillion for the first time on June 9.

Table III-C of the Daily Treasury Statement for Thursday, October 1, 2020 (shown below) indicates that the total public debt of the federal government rose from a closing balance of approximately $26,945,391,000,000 on September 30 to a closing balance of approximately $27,026,922,000,000 on October 1:

Table with columns: Effective Date, Intragovernmental Holdings, Public Debt, Total Debt. Shows data from 10/01/2020 to 09/16/2020.

TABLE III-C - Debt Subject to Limit. Table with columns: Balance Transactions, Closing balance today, Opening balance (Today, This month, Fiscal year).

COVID Policies Drive National Debt to All-Time Record for Highest Portion of US Economy

Today's unprecedented debt-to-economy ratio includes $2.5 trillion in new debt since the outset of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Over the course of US history, the government's debt-to-GDP ratio has averaged 30.3 percent and has stayed around or below this level except for a massive spike from World War II...

nation's history:

The debt continued growing in early June and reached 120.5 percent by the 8th day of the month. These debt-to-GDP figures are based on the latest available yearly data from the US Treasury and the US Bureau of Economic Analysis...

COVID-19 Responses & Impacts

- From the day that the World Health Organization declared COVID-19 a pandemic (March 11) through June 8th, the US national debt rose by $2.5 trillion or 11.5 percentage points of GDP. This was mainly due to: 1. Four federal bills passed to address the pandemic... 2. Lost tax revenue from business shutdowns... 3. Debt increases that were already baked into the federal budget for 2020.

Because the latest available GDP data is for the first quarter of 2020, and the business shutdowns didn't begin until mid-March, they affect only half a month out of a year of data. Thus, the shutdowns have a relatively small effect on the latest annual GDP figure, reducing it by about 0.4 percent.

Also in response to COVID-19 and the shutdowns, the Federal Reserve created trillions of dollars in new money to purchase federal government debt and other financial assets. The effects of such policies don't necessarily manifest in the national debt but can impact people in other ways. (Courtesy fee.org)

婚姻觀 Daily News

打败婚姻的，就是这一个字

愿婚姻里的我们可以谨记初心，拒绝偷懒，让仪式感、行动、沟通这三把钥匙，把婚姻这颗植物浇灌得生机勃勃。

每个人走进婚姻都是奔着幸福去的，而幸福的姿态是需要持续保养的。

好的婚姻一定是勤快的，有仪式感、多行动、勤沟通，缺一不可。

而一旦“懒”了，忽视仪式感，做的少了，沟通消失，两个人之间有了缝隙，蛀虫腐蚀就有了可乘之机。

仪式感，是婚姻华丽的面子

有人说恋爱越美好，婚姻失败率越高，因为落差太大，难以接受。

《幸福三重奏》中有一幕，奚梦瑶、谢楠和白慧明聊天。白慧明把自己与于谦20年的婚姻，做了总结。

婚后，她专心在家照顾孩子和家庭，于谦事业忙碌，常常奔波在外。看似和谐的背后，似乎也有些小小的遗憾。

“我们领证的日子是二月二十二，办事的时间是五一。”可是，两个人却从来没有过结婚纪念日。她说：“我们20年了，从来没有记得过，转头想起‘昨天咱俩结婚纪念日，忘了’，忘了忘了吧。”

说这话的时候，她的笑脸之中隐藏着丝丝苦涩。

仪式感，说着似乎像空壳，意义却不容忽略。它不应该随着时间的推移，渐行渐远，也不应该因为两个人在一起越来越久，而消失不见。

仪式感是平淡生活的调味品，是唤醒美好的小技巧。只需稍稍用心，绝对是收获大于成本。

一项对英国2000对夫妻的调查显示，在婚姻进入第三年时，很多夫妻就把彼此的付出当成理所当然，其中，49%的人已经表现出对伴侣的不满。

乍见之欢容易，久处不厌很难。为什么？因为恋爱开始的殷勤很容易，漫长婚姻里的持久热情很难，一不小心就被一个“懒”字打败。

美其名曰老夫老妻来拒绝仪式感，不过是偷懒的借口。

因为彼此熟悉，所以当你需要帮助，不需要说“请帮我”；

当他为你做了什么，你也不再习惯“谢谢”；

你的生日、他的生日、你们的纪念日都不再是什么特别的日子，礼物更是一种浪费，没有必要，每一天都是一模一样的日子；

.....

于是，婚姻就有了倦怠感，以及对彼此的挑剔和不满。

如果可以保持一颗感恩之心，偶尔创造一点惊喜，保持一点仪式感，生活就没那么多不满，随之而来的会是和谐幸福。

代表仪式感的礼物和礼貌，千万不要省略，毕竟伸手不打笑脸人，礼多人不怪，这些都是幸福婚姻的添加剂。

行动，是爱意流动的法宝

看过一个小故事：

在某个聚餐场合，有人提议多吃虾对身体好。

这时候，有个中年男人说：“十年前，当我老婆还是我女朋友的时候，她说要吃十只虾，我就剥了十只给她！现在，如果她要我帮她剥虾壳，开玩笑，我连帮她脱衣服都没兴趣了，还剥虾壳咧。”

此言是大实话，却没什么值得骄傲的。因为懒的后果是，婚姻变得日渐陈旧，感情不得不生锈，日子索然无味，婚姻食之无味。

为什么越来越多的人想要一谈恋爱，而不踏入婚姻？因为婚姻太容易使人变得懒惰，懒的背后是你心里越来越没有对方的证明。

看过一个视频：

男人带着表弟回来，看见女孩在洗螃蟹，问哪儿来的，女孩说妈妈知道自己喜欢吃，刚寄来的。

当她把一整盘螃蟹端到餐桌，刚坐下便接了公司电话，就回屋去改计划书。等她忙完走出来，发现老公和表弟躺在沙发上打游戏，餐桌上一片狼藉，一盘子螃蟹，一个不剩。

那一刻，她多心寒？

眼前这个男人，没有为你着想的行动，代表着心里越来越没有你的位置。

从几时开始，他不会在自己吃螃蟹的时候，想起你爱吃，而为你留；

不会因为你做饭辛苦，而等着和你一起吃；

在婚姻里沉浸太久，两个人身体很近，可心却很遥远，那些恋爱时为你做的统统遗忘；

在外吃饭，为你剥虾皮。

下雨天为你撑伞，倾斜的伞只为保护你，宁愿淋湿自己。

你会迁就他喜欢吃辣，他会惦记你喜欢吃鱼。

.....

曾经总是为对方着想，总想为对方多做些什么。如今，在婚姻里，他眼里只有自己，日积月累，你心里也只装得下自己。

当行动这个实实在在表达爱意的法宝，你们都不再使用，婚姻的幸福也会大打折扣。

沟通，是温暖直达心底的钥匙

心理学上有句名言：无回应之地，即是绝境。

婚姻中的失语症，尤其令人绝望。

台湾短片《餐桌上的陌生人》中有这样一幕。女人在准备吃饭，他带着耳机，盯着电脑。无论她说什么，他只是简单应答，注意力全部盯着电脑，她黯然低下了头。

“现在笨不笨？”

他回应：“是吗？”

“你有没有听到什么声音啊？”

他疑惑：“有什么声音吗？”

她黯然：就是什么声音都没有，好安静，安静得让人心凉。

心理学上有个调味品效应，指的是夫妻之间的“废话”“闲话”起到了“调味品”的作用，起到了感情的交流和点缀作用。

如果我们每个人都懒得讲话，懒得倾听，我们之间没有语言带给彼此的喜怒哀乐，彼此无沟通无接触，慢慢习惯了静静的环境，喜欢了一个人的孤独。那么，婚姻中的你我怎么会不渐行渐远？当婚姻的温度一度一度下降，一颗真心就会一寸一寸结成冰。

闺蜜吐槽，现在每晚和老公一张床，一人抱着一个手机，低头，彼此没有沟通，最近的距离却有着最深的孤独。

语言何其神奇，一言一语，启动的是你我的嘴，拉近的是彼此的心。一旦沟通消失，心也就跟着远了。

没有语言的连接，即使我们在同一个屋檐下，你却不知道我的习惯和爱好，早已经变了。正如《餐桌上的陌生人》，他拉着她，在家看电影。

“你喜欢看他的电影，对吧？”

“我早就喜欢他了。”

可是，因为他愿意开口陪她聊天，愿意为她而变，就很好。

当你愿意打开沟通的闸门，你爱人的心门也会为你敞开。

有一项关于交流时间对夫妻关系的影响的调查，结果显示：

平均一对夫妻每天交流时间是71.6分钟，关系不好的夫妻只有27.6分钟，而关系融洽的夫妻高达80.6分钟。

语言可以让人笑口常开，唯有语言配得上“天花乱坠”。陌生的两个人，因为语言得以认识；熟识后的你我，因为语言变得亲近。

好的婚姻，是ta不仅愿意和你一起慢慢变老，还喜欢和你一起聊到天荒地老。

心理学家武志红说，只有人性化的人际互动，才能让一个人体验到自己是人。

无论是偶尔闪现的仪式感，还是充满爱心的行动，以及日常沟通里的温暖，都是人心深处向往的美好，也是有利于婚姻这颗植物生长的肥料。

毕淑敏说，婚姻的本质是一种生长缓慢的植物，需要不断浇灌，施加肥料，修枝理叶，打杀害虫，才有持久的绿荫。

愿婚姻里的我们可以谨记初心，拒绝偷懒，让仪式感、行动、沟通这三把钥匙，把婚姻这颗植物浇灌得生机勃勃。
