Evergrande's debt deadline passes as Kaisa adds to China's property crisis

MOSCOW, Dec 8 (Reuters) - Russian President Vladimir Putin said on Wednesday that Russia would send ideas to Washington within a week

MOSCOW, Dec 8 (Reuters) - Russian President Vladimir Putin said on Wednesday that Russia would send ideas to Washington within a week to follow up his talks with U.S. President Joe Biden on the Ukraine crisis.

Neither side spoke of a breakthrough after the two-hour video call but they agreed to keep talking about what the Kremlin called "this complex confrontational situation".

"We agreed we will continue this discussion and we'll do it in a substantive way. We will exchange our ideas in the very near future. Russia will draw up its ideas literally in the coming days, within a week we will give this to the U.S. side to consider," Putin told reporters.

The two leaders used Tuesday's call to set out their opposing positions on Ukraine, which says it is braced for a possible invasion by tens of thousands of Russian troops close to its border.

Biden warned Putin that the West would impose "strong economic and other measures" on Moscow if it invaded, while Putin demanded guarantees that NATO would not expand eastward. read more

In his first public comments since the conversation, Putin said it was "provocative" to pose the question of whether Russia planned to attack Ukraine, and once again accused Kyiv and NATO of threatening Russia's security.

"We cannot fail to be concerned about the prospect of Ukraine's possible admission to NATO, because this will undoubtedly be followed by the deployment there of military contingents, bases and weapons that threaten us," he said.

It would be "criminal inaction" on Russia's part not to respond, he said.

"We are working on the assumption that our concerns, at least this time, will be heard."

Russian military aircraft were scrambled on Wednesday to escort French Rafale and Mirage fighter jets flying over the Black Sea, RIA news agency quoted the defence ministry as saying.

Russia's foreign ministry said it had handed a note of protest to the U.S. embassy over "dangerous" flights of U.S. and NATO military planes near Russia's borders

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy welcomed Biden's "personal role" in trying to attain peace in eastern Ukraine, where Ukraine says more than 14,000 people have been killed in seven years of fighting with Russian-backed separatists.

Zelenskiy said he hoped Ukraine and Russia could agree a new ceasefire and prisoner exchanges when their representatives held talks on the conflict in Ukraine's easterly Donbass region on Wednesday.

Ukrainian Foreign Minister Dmytro Kuleba told Reuters the talks between Biden and Putin had served the purpose of "deterrence and de-escalation". read more

A Russian foreign ministry official was quoted as saying the United States might be included for the first time in a group of countries working to end the conflict in eastern Ukraine.

RIA quoted the official, Oleg Krasnitsky, as saying there was no reason why the United States should not join the so-called Normandy grouping - comprising Russia, Ukraine, France and Germany - that has tried but so far failed to end the war.

"A lot depends on the position of Washington in settling the Ukrainian conflict. In principle, if the U.S. is really ready to make a contribution, we've always been open to America exercising its influence on Kyiv," he was quoted as saying.

The remarks appeared to indicate that Moscow was open to an offer by U.S. Secretary of State Antony Blinken last week for Washington to facilitate talks on the fighting.

In eastern Ukraine, some residents were sceptical that the Biden-Putin call would make any difference.

"We have been living in war for many years. And it is terrible that we got used to it. I don't know what will happen next. We'll see," said a 55-year-old teacher who gave his name as Vladislav.

Alexander Pipchenko, 52, said: "It was pointless. It's been going on for eight years already. In my opinion, it will not bear any fruit."

U.S. Will Boycott The Beijing 2022 Winter Olympics

President Biden made it official: The U.S. will not send any American government officials to the 2022 Winter Olympics. White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki said that while American athletes would be able to compete in the Winter Games in Beijing, there would be no delegation of American officials sent to the games. She said the boycott was a response to human rights abuses in Xinjiang.

In the meantime, the Chinese government said that those calling for a boycott were "grandstanding," and further stated that, "If the U. S. insists in willfully clinging to its course, China will take resolute countermeasures."

The U.S. Olympic committee issued a statement saying that it did not support a boycott preventing American athletes from competing in Beijing.

Just a couple of weeks ago, the world Ping Pong championship tournament held successful events in Houston, Texas. We are so glad that many of the young people came together not only to compete in the games, but also to promote friendship between all the people.

Today our world already has more trouble than it can handle. We hope the two countries will continue to improve their relationship which really relates directly to world peace and prosperity.

"Since May, [more than] 100,000 Americans unnecessarily lost their lives because they chose not to get vaccinated," tweeted Peter Hotez, MD, PhD, of Baylor College of Medicine in There are many reasons for the differences Houston. "They fell victim to the vile ing members of U.S. Congress, Gov-'disinformation dozen' identified by CCDH; and Russian propaganda."

With the U.S. now averaging some 2,000 deaths per day, and the potential for sustained, high levels of transmission to spawn another variant, SARS-CoV-2 can still wreak much more havoc. Whether that ever reaches 1918 H1N1 proportions remains to be seen. The comparison to the 1918 flu pandemic also serves as a reminder of the risk that influenza poses. Since 1918, three other influenza pandemics occurred in the U.S.: H2N2 in 1957, H3N2 in 1968, and H1N1 in 2009. These pandemics were all far less severe than the first H1N1 pandemic. But that doesn't mean another killer flu -- or another deadly coronavirus -outbreak is off the table.

A reflection on the progress made since the 1918 pandemic by two CDC scientists published in Science for the 100-year anniversary of that outbreak concludes: "Philosopher George Santayana pointed out, 'Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it.' We are no doubt more prepared in 2018 for an infectious disease threat than in 1918. But it is critical to remember that preparation only stems from a global commitment to share data about viral isolates, support innovative research, and dedicate resources to assess the pandemic risk of new and emerging influenza viruses from zoonotic reservoirs." COVID Has Now Killed As Many Americans As The 1918-19 Flu COVID-19 has now killed as many Americans as the 1918-19 Spanish flu pandemic did — approximately 675,000.

The U.S. population a century ago was just one-third of what it is today, meaning the flu cut a much bigger, more lethal swath through the country. But the COVID-19 crisis is by any measure a colossal tragedy in its own right, especially given the incredible advances in scientific knowledge since then and the failure to take maximum advantage of the vaccines available this time. "Big pockets of American society — and, worse, their leaders — have thrown this away," medical historian Dr. Howard Markel of the University of Michigan said of the opportunity to vaccinate everyone eligible by now. Like the Spanish flu, the coronavirus may never entirely disappear from our midst. Instead, scientists hope it becomes a mild seasonal bug as human immunity strengthens through vaccination and repeated infection. That could take time.

'We hope it will be like getting a cold, but there's no guarantee," said Emory University biologist Rustom Antia, who suggests an optimistic scenario in which this could happen over a few

For now, the pandemic still has the United States and other parts of the world firmly in its jaws. While the delta-fueled surge in infections may have peaked, U.S. deaths are running at over 1,900 a day on average, the highest level since early March, and the country's overall toll topped 675,000 Monday, according to the count kept by Johns Hopkins University, though the real number is believed to be higher. Winter may bring a new surge, with the University of Washington's influential model projecting an additional 100,000 or so Americans will die of COVID-19 by Jan. 1, which would bring the overall U.S. toll to 776,000. The 1918-19 influenza pandemic killed 50 million victims globally at a time when the world had one-quarter the population it does now. Global deaths from COVID-19 now stand at more than 4.6 million.

Photo shows a demonstration at the Red Cross Emergency Ambulance Station in Washington during the influenza pandemic of 1918. Historians think the pandemic started in Kansas in early 1918, and by winter 1919 the virus had infected a third of the global population and killed at least 50 million people, including 675,000 Americans. Some estimates put the toll as high as 100 million. (Library of Congress via AP, File)

The Spanish flu's U.S. death toll is a rough guess, given the incomplete records of the era and the poor scientific understanding of what caused the illness. The 675,000 figure comes from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

The ebbing of COVID-19 could happen if the virus progressively weakens as it mutates and more and more humans' immune systems learn to attack it. Vaccination and surviving infection are the main ways the immune system improves. Breast-fed infants also gain some immunity from their mothers. Under that optimistic scenario, schoolchildren would get mild illness that trains their immune systems. As they grow up, the children would carry the immune response memory, so that when they are old and vulnerable, the coronavirus would be no more dangerous than cold viruses.

The same goes for today's vaccinated teens: Their immune systems would get stronger through the shots and mild infections.

"We will all get infected," Antia predicted. "What's important is whether the infections are severe."

Something similar happened with the H1N1 flu virus, the culprit in the 1918-19 pandemic. It encountered too many people who were immune, and it also eventually weakened through mutation. H1N1 still circulates today, but immunity acquired through infection and vaccination has triumphed. Getting an annual flu shot now protects against H1N1 and several other strains of flu. To be sure, flu kills between 12,000 and 61,000 Americans each year, but on average, it is a seasonal problem and a manageable one.

Before COVID-19, the 1918-19 flu was universally considered the worst pandemic disease in human history. Whether the current scourge ultimately proves deadlier is unclear.

One plus: The coronavirus mutates at a slower pace than flu viruses, making it a more stable target for vaccination, said Ann Marie Kimball, a retired University of Washington professor of epidemiology.

So, will the current pandemic unseat the 1918-19 flu pandemic as the worst in human history? "You'd like to say no. We have a lot more infection control, a lot more ability to support people who are sick. We have modern medicine," Kimball said. "But we have a lot more people and a lot more mobility. ... The fear is eventually a new strain gets around a particular vaccine target."

To those unvaccinated individuals who are counting on infection rather than vaccination for immune protection, Kimball said, "The trouble is, you have to survive infection to acquire the immunity." It's easier, she said, to go to the drugstore and get a shot. (Courtesy apnews.com)

The 1918 Flu Pandemic Never Really Ended After infecting millions of people worldwide, the 1918 flu strain shifted—and then stuck

An unthinkable 50 to 100 million people worldwide died from the 1918-1919 flu pandemic commonly known as the "Spanish Flu." It was the deadliest global pandemic since the Black Death, and rare among flu viruses for striking down the young and healthy, often within days of exhibiting the first symptoms. In the United States, the 1918 flu pandemic lowered the average life expectancy by 12 years.

What's even more remarkable about the 1918 flu, say infectious disease experts, is that it never really went away. After infecting an estimated 500 million people worldwide in 1918 and 1919 (a third of the global population), the H1N1 strain that caused the Spanish flu receded into the background and stuck around as the regular seasonal flu. But every so often, direct descendants of the 1918 flu combined with bird flu or swine flu to create powerful new pandemic strains, which is exactly what happened in 1957, 1968 and 2009. Those later flu outbreaks, all created in part by the 1918 virus, claimed millions of additional lives, earning the 1918 flu the odious title of "the mother of all

COMMUNITY

The Deadly Virus Struck in Three Waves Jeffrey Taubenberger was part of the pioneering scientific team that first isolated and sequenced the genome of the 1918 flu virus in the late 1990s. The painstaking process involved extracting viral RNA from autopsied lung samples taken from American soldiers who died from the 1918 flu, plus one diseased lung preserved in the Alaskan permafrost for nearly 100 years. Now chief of the Viral Pathogenesis and Evolution Section at the National Institutes of Health (NIH), Taubenberger explains that genetic analyses of the 1918 flu indicate that it started as an avian flu and represented a completely new viral strain when it made the leap to humans shortly before 1918. Lab tests of the reconstructed 1918 virus show that in its original form, the virus's novel encoded proteins made it 100 times more lethal in mice than today's seasonal flu. The 1918 pandemic struck in three distinct waves over a 12-month period. It first appeared in the spring of 1918 in North America and Europe largely in the trenches of World War I, then reemerged in its deadliest form in the fall of 1918, killing tens of millions of people worldwide from September through November. The final wave swept across Australia, the United States and Europe in the late winter and spring of 1919. But did the 1918 flu simply "go away" after that third wave? Absolutely not, says Taubenberger.

Virus Mutates Into Seasonal Flu

Since the whole world had been exposed to the virus, and had therefore developed natural immunity against it, the 1918 strain began to mutate and evolve in a process called "antigenic drift." Slightly altered versions of the 1918 flu reemerged in the winters of 1919-1920 and 1920-1921, but they were far less deadly and nearly indistinguishable from the seasonal flu "The 1918 flu definitely lost its real virulence by the early 1920s," says Taubenberger. But what's truly incredible, according to genetic analyses, is that the same novel strain of flu first introduced in 1918 appears to be the direct ancestor of every seasonal and pandemic flu we've had over the past century.

"You can still find the genetic traces of the 1918 virus in the seasonal flus that circulate today." says Taubenberger. "Every single human infection with influenza A in the past 102 years is derived from that one introduction of the 1918

Welcome to the Pandemic Era

The 1918 flu pandemic was by far the deadliest flu outbreak of the 20td 21h anst centuries to date, but it wasn't the only one to qualify as a pandemic. Even with the advent of the first seasonal flu vaccines after World War II, the flu virus has proven capable of some unexpected and deadly genetic tricks. In a normal flu season, vaccine scientists can track the most active viral strains and produce a vaccine that protects against changes in the human flu virus from year to year. But every so often, viral genes from the animal kingdom enter the mix.

"If one animal is infected with two different influenza viruses at the same time," says Taubenberger, "maybe one virus from a bird and another from a human, those genes can mix and match to create a brand new virus that never existed before." That's what happened in 1957 when the 1918 flu, which is an H1N1 virus, swapped genes with another bird flu giving us the H2N2 pandemic, which claimed a million

A man receives a shave from a barber wearing a mask during the ongoing flu pandemic, Chicago, Illinois, 1918. Chicago Sun-Times/ Chicago Daily News Collection/Chicago History Museum/Getty Images.

It happened again in 1968 with the creation of the so-called "Hong Kong Flu," an H3N2 virus that killed another million people. The socalled "Swine Flu" pandemic of 2009 has an even deeper backstory. When humans became infected with the 1918 pandemic flu, which was originally a bird flu, we also passed it on to pigs. "One branch of the 1918 flu permanently adapted to pigs and became swine influenza that was seen in pigs in the US every year after 1918 and spread around the world," says Taubenberger. In 2009, a strain of swine flu swapped genes with both human influenza and avian influenza to create a new variety of H1N1 flu that was "more like 1918 than had been seen in a long time," says Taubenberger. Around 300,000 people died from the 2009 flu pandemic.

All told, if 50 to 100 million people died in the 1918 and 1919 pandemic, and tens of millions more have died in the ensuing century of seasonal flus and pandemic outbreaks, then all of those deaths can be attributed to the single and accidental emergence in humans of the very successful and stubborn 1918 virus.

"We're still living in what I would call the '1918 pandemic era' 102 years later' says Taubenberger, "and I don't know how long it will last." (Courtesy history.com)

李医生引进最新设备治疗下肢疼痛! 第一次治疗$49元Coupon!

(本报记者黄梅子)步入中年,不少人会发现膝关节灵活不比从前,患有膝关节炎(Osteoarthritis of the knee)的风险也随著年纪大了而提高。膝关节炎由软骨及其周围细胞耗损而引发,属于相当常见的人体老化疾病之一。膝关节炎病发是由关节细胞耗损程度和修复程度失去平衡而导致,症状包括关节疼痛、僵硬和功能减弱。情况严重时,还需要手术治疗。

还有一部分患者下肢疼痛是Lateral Patellar Compression Syndrome 髌骨外侧压缩综合症。另有些患者是因为颈椎腰椎或坐骨神经引起的下肢疼痛。还有些患者是车祸后遗症,有些人在车祸过去几年以后才感觉到身体各种疼痛。

总之,不管您是哪种原因引起的下肢疼,都要引起重视,积极做康复治疗,不管是膝关节炎还是车祸后遗症,康复治疗总是比动手术更保险。康复治疗一定要在医生的指导下进行,否则有可能使得病情恶化。Texas

Spinal Care 的李医生引进最新的多功能下肢牵引治疗仪,帮您减轻疼痛,快速恢复健康!这个机器经过FDA批准,是目前最先进最有效的下肢疼痛治疗仪,其组成包括固定装置,放松装置,牵张装置,能刺激双腿内侧肌群及穴位,可通经活络,缓解肌肉挛缩,激活运动神经元,恢复下肢运动功能。李医生还有仪器测试足底,电脑扫描足部定做康复鞋垫,能很大程度地缓解下肢疼痛以及行走困难。

养和氧供应不足,影响到软骨细胞的增殖时,就会导致软骨基质减少,软骨新生不足而变软弱,极易在负重部

位发生磨损。 髌股关节综合征占到了所有运动 相关的膝关节问题的25-40%,在膝关 节功能障碍与运动损伤中十分常见。 髋股疼痛综合征风险最大的人群是跑 步者,骑自行车者,篮球运动员以及 相关跑跳较多的爱好者到运动员,当 然主要还是动作模式问题与过度不正 确使用所引起,病症发作可能是由于 慢性损伤或者单次急性损伤直接引起 ,症状包括膝关节弥漫性疼痛和局部 髌下疼痛。髌骨周围和下方、膝盖前 部、膝盖骨的内侧边缘经常有压痛, 髌骨周围后方发生持续的钝疼疼痛, 运动后有时会出现肿胀。在上下山坡 、上下楼梯、久坐起身时,髌股关节 位置疼痛往往更严重。膝盖弯曲时可 能伴随发出哢哢声「关节噪音」,髌 股关节综合症往往伴随著大腿肌肉 「股四头肌」的肌张力异常,髌骨周

围的圆圈性疼痛范围,久坐后症状加 剧,无力疼痛伴有膝关节屈曲减少。

髌骨与股骨组成髌股关节,髌骨关节和我们的胫股关节共组成了我们身体上著名的——膝关节,而我们的髌股关节形成在髌骨和股骨远端之间,可谓是在夹缝中成长。治疗中最重要的第一步是避免使问题恶化的活动,并且及时休息,光嚷嚷"疼"而不去治疗的人是打算坐轮椅过下半生?

应,所以一旦损伤恢复会非常的缓慢,停止进一步的损害是十分必要的。 李医生治疗下肢疼痛,先用电脑扫描 仪扫描足部,帮您定制复健矫正鞋垫 ,能极大地缓解走路时的疼痛,然后 再用下肢牵引治疗仪来复健治疗,配 合使用医用去痛风湿乳液和营养素, 是目前治疗下肢疼痛的最佳治疗组合 。您携带这篇文章可以在第一次检查
