Dollar firms as US jobs report backs Fed hike in May

NEW YORK, April 7 (Reuters) - The dollar strengthened on Friday after data showed an increase in jobs in the world's largest economy last month, suggesting that the Federal Reserve may have to raise interest rates next month.

Prior to the jobs report, the rate futures market had been betting that the Fed would pause at the May policy meeting. The market has now priced in a 70% chance the Fed will raise interest rates by 25 basis points (bps), though multiple rate cuts have also been factored in by the end of the year.

Friday's data showed U.S. nonfarm payrolls increased 236,000 in March, in line with forecasts of 239,000. Data for February was revised higher to show 326,000 jobs were added instead of 311,000 as previously reported.

The unemployment rate fell to 3.5% from 3.6% in February. Average hourly earnings, which reflect wage inflation, rose 0.3% in March after gaining 0.2% in February.

"Federal Reserve officials are likely to continue delivering their higher-for-longer message in the run-up to the May policy meeting, supporting expectations for a final rate hike and putting a floor under the dollar," said Karl Schamotta, chief market strategist at Corpay in Toronto.

"That said, recent data would suggest that the economic risk backdrop is turning more negative - if inflation and retail sales numbers disappoint in coming weeks, all bets are off," he add-

Liquidity has thinned in the hours following the release of the jobs number ahead of the Easter weekend. Some European markets are also closed on Monday.

In afternoon trading, the dollar index rose 0.1% to 102.03. Against the yen, the dollar was up 0.3% at 132.10 yen while the euro was 0.1% weaker at $1.0910.

Analysts also said that while the jobs report showed strong gains, there are sectors that have seen moderate declines specifically the manufacturing and construction

With nonfarm payrolls out of the way, investors are now focused on the U.S. consumer price index (CPI) for the month of March. # 'Powell's curve' plunges to new lows, flashing US recession warning

The Federal Reserve's preferred bond market signal of an upcoming recession has plunged to fresh lows, bolstering the case for those who believe the central bank will soon need to cut rates in order to revive economic activity.

Research from the Fed has argued that the "near-term forward spread" comparing the forward rate on Treasury bills 18 months from now with the current yield on a three-month Treasury bill was the most reliable bond market signal of an imminent economic contraction.

That spread, which has been in negative territory since November, plunged to new lows this week, standing at nearly minus 170 basis points on Thursday.

Fed Chair Jerome Powell said last year that the 18-month U.S. Treasury yield curve was the most reliable warning of an upcoming recession.

"Powell's curve ... continues to plunge to fresh century lows," Citi rates strategists William O'Donnell and Edward Acton said in a note on Thursday. Refinitiv data showed the curve was the most inverted since at least 2007.

Recession fears have surged in recent weeks, with investors worried the tumult in the banking system sparked by the March collapse of Silicon Valley Bank will tighten credit conditions and hurt growth.

The Fed over the past year has embarked on one of its most aggressive rate hiking cycles in decades to defeat inflation, and has forecast borrowing costs will remain around current levels to the end of 2023. But market participants believe tighter monetary policy is already starting to hurt growth and are betting on rate cuts later this year.

When looking at that curve inversion in light of recent declines in economic indicators and money supply, "it's not hard to see why markets may be increasingly thinking 'policy error' when reading about further rate hikes," Citi's analysts said.

Continuing its inflation-fighting campaign, the Fed last month raised interest rates by a quarter of a percentage point, though it indicated it was on the verge of pausing further increases in borrowing costs after the banking turmoil. Some Fed officials have recently argued for more hikes, with St. Louis Fed President James Bullard saying on Thursday that the Fed should stick to raising interest rates to lower inflation while the labor market remains strong.

Money market investors, however, on Thursday were largely betting the Fed would have cut rates by about 70 basis points by December, from the current 4.75%-5% range.

"All this tightening of financial conditions, with the Fed raising rates significantly, now it's morphing into maybe a little bit of a credit tightening," said Jack McIntyre, portfolio manager at Brandywine Global.

Opinion: Ending The Ukraine War

Moscow And Kiev Have Tentatively Welcomed China's Peace Plan, But Kiev's Chief Supporters Are Bitterly Opposed To It

The Chinese Ukraine Peace Plan: Can Beijing Find A Way To End The Ongoing Conflict, Despite Lack Of Support/Hostility From The U.S. And NATO?

Compiled And Edited By John T. Robbins, Southern Daily Editor

Throughout the latter half of February, China was increasingly active diplomatically. Its highest-ranking diplomat, the Director. of the Office of the Central Foreign Affairs Commission of the Chinese Communist Party Wang Yi, made a European tour. After attending the Munich Security Conference, he traveled to Hungary and Russia. In Moscow, he held talks with Security Council Secretary Nikolai Patrushev, Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov, and finally, Russian President Vladimir Putin. Yi assured Putin that China is ready to strengthen strategic cooperation with Russia. He stressed that Russian-Chinese relations are not directed against third countries, and will not yield to outside

The Russian President confirmed that he is looking forward to the state visit of his "friend Xi Jinping" after the session of the National People's Congress (NPC) of the People's Republic of China (PRC), an event where key government officials will be appointed. According to The Wall Street Journal, this visit may take place in April or at the beginning of May, when Russia celebrates WWII Victory Day.

Ukrainian Troops Engaged In Battle. WSJ sources also reported that Beijing wishes to play a greater role in the settlement of the Ukraine conflict, and Xi plans to discuss multilateral peace talks. Soon afterwards. China proposed its peace initiative for the conflict. However, for many observers, Beijing's proposals generate far more questions than answers.

The Chinese document While Yi was touring Europe, China published two documents expressing its position on a new global security architecture. On February 21, the Foreign Ministry released the concept of a global security initiative based on six main principles. The document mostly restated Beijing's neutral rhetoric regarding stands next to that of a "serious attitude" towards legitimate security concerns. While the first thesis is occasionally interpreted as China's rejection of the Russian offensive in Ukraine, the second point refers to the Western leaders' decision to ignore Moscow's concerns about the expansion of NATO to the East. At the same time, China has particularly stressed that it remains committed to resolving differences and disputes through dialogue and consultations, not wars and sanctions.

On February 24, the anniversary of the Russian offensive in Ukraine, the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs published another document widely referred to in the media as China's 'peace plan''. In fact, Beijing never offered its text, titled "China's Position on the Political Settlement of the Ukraine Crisis', as a roadmap. The document contains only vague formulations tinged with an air of philosophy.

Here's the outline of China's twelve points: • respect for the sovereignty and territorial integrity of all countries and the norms of international law:

· rejection of the "cold war mentality" (including the expansion of military blocs); a ceasefire and an end to hostilities ('in war, no one wins');

a return to peace negotiations;

 the settlement of the humanitarian crisis: • the protection of civilians and prisoners of war;

 ensuring the safety of nuclear power plants; • the reduction of strategic risks and prevention of the use of nuclear weapons: • the export of food within the grain corridor,

· an end to unilateral sanctions; securing the stability of production and supply chains;

• the involvement of the international community in post-war reconstruction.

'Too much' peace

China's peacemaking proposal didn't spark a positive reaction from all key players. Russia's reception was polite, but tepid-Vladimir Putin's press secretary Dmitry Peskov said that Moscow will pay great attention to the "plan of our Chinese friends" but added that so far it does not see any prerequisites for a return to a peaceful course. He added that the military operation would continue, and Russia is moving towards

(L) Dmitry Peskov; (R) Maria Zakharova © Sputnik Press Service of the Russian Foreign Ministry

Foreign Ministry Spokeswoman Maria Zakharova earlier said that Moscow shares Beijing's core ideas and remains committed to the principles of compliance with international law and indivisible security. Russia is ready to achieve its objectives through political and diplomatic means, but a peace agreement should imply "a stop to supplies of Western weapons and mercenaries to Ukraine, the end of hostilities, the return of the country to a neutral non-aligned status, and the recognition of new territorial realities.

Beijing's initiative provoked an outburst of criticism against China on behalf of US authorities, who wrongly assessed Moscow's enthusiasm for the proposals.

"Putin's applauding it, so how could it [the peace plan] be any good? I've seen nothing in the plan that would indicate that there is something that would be beneficial to anyone other than Russia, if the Chinese plan were followed. The idea that China is going to be negotiating the outcome of a war that's a totally unjust war for Ukraine is just not rational,' US President Joe Biden said in an interview with ABC Adding to the rhetoric, Biden's National Security Adviser Jake Sullivan suggested that Beijing stick to the first point about respecting the sovereignty of all countries. Commenting on China's plan, NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg pointed out that Beijing "doesn't inspire much trust." He went so far to state that his bloc suspects Chinese weapons may be supplied to Russia, even though "there is no such evidence vet." Meanwhile, the President of the European Commission. Ursula von der Leyen, said that the EU will study China's document, but only in the light of the "friendship between Beijing and Moscow".

The President of Ukraine, Vladimir Zelensky, spoke out about China's "reflections" in a more neutral way. Zelensky noted that while he doesn't share all the ideas outlined in Beijing's proposals, some are quite suitable for Ukraine - for example, the support of the territorial integrity of all countries. However Zelensky stressed that unless China's plan includes a proposal on the withdrawal of Russian troops from Ukraine's territory, it will be unachievable. At the same time, Zelensky said that he also wishes to meet with Chinese President Xi Jinping Zelensky's advisor, Mikhail Podolyak, reacted more strongly. He indicated that any proposals should include "a return to 1991 borders". The head of the the president's "Servant of the People' faction. David Arakhamiya, dunbend Beijing's suggestion for both parties to immediately start negotiations "unacceptable" due to the current realities. Against this background, the position of Poland, one of the closest allies of the US in Europe, came as a surprise. Polish President Andrzei Duda stated that the initiative might become a way towards peace, and that one "should not underestimate a great power like China". These words may indicate his desire to maintain beneficial economic ties with Beijing

So why did China's "peace plan" remain so vague and why did its appeal to "the good of mankind" provoke such a strong

"What we have seen is by no means an action plan or a peacemaking appeal. Rather, it is a declaration of China's position. It is important for the world community to see what China has called for and what it wants. It has been rumored that China wants to supply lethal weapons or otherwise intervene in the conflict. With this document. China has demonstrated that it has different intentions, and it stands on the side of peace," Alexey Maslov, director of the Institute of Asian and African Countries at the Moscow State University, told RT. According to Maslov. China's proposal is insufficiently radical for the West and is too mild for Russia since it doesn't directly con-

Russian Troops Celebrate Veterans Day.

"But if you closely examine the text, you'll see that it includes some anti-Western statements - for example, a call for the non-proliferation of military blocs. We may call this the kind of neutrality that favors Russia," the expert says.

Vasily Kashin, director of the Higher School of Economics Center for Comprehensive European and International Studies, agreed that for Russia, the Chinese "peace plan" is mostly acceptable, but will likely be rejected by the West and Ukraine. At the same time, he believes the document was originally created with a different purpose in mind.

China wanted to show everyone that it can come up with good peace proposals which may act as an alternative to the West's bellicose rhetoric. A number of developing countries that remain neutral may support this initiative," the Kashin

China's initiatives directly proceed from the foreign policy concepts of the Communist Party and Xi himself - viewing the world as a community involved in shaping the common destiny of mankind. Only uninformed observers could expect China to take a different standpoint. Alexander Lomanov head of the Center for Asia-Pacific Studies of the IMEMO RAS, told RT. In his opinion, the negative reception that the proposal received from Europeans and Americans are a result

'China believes that in the future, humanity should solve serious problems together. Xi's initiatives are indisputable—they talk about joint prosperity, the support of production chains. etc. However, in the modern world, which has apparently lost all mutual trust, it remains unclear how all of this can be implemented. Especially in the context of the current confrontation with the West, which sides against Beijing. Are America and its satellites ready to form such a community, based on the Chinese model? No. Even some third world countries are not ready for it." the expert said.

Lomanov added that the West has ignored Russia's concerns about NATO expansion over the past 25 years, and neither will it listen to Beijing's appeal.

"China is a powerful country. But it can hardly become a broker that all sides of the conflict will trust. For example, the cessation of fire is hardly possible as long as the idea of a military victory over Russia dominates in the West," he explained. The experts added that historically, China has never been a mediator and it is not interested in becoming one in the context of the Ukrainian conflict. According to Kashin, the US suggested that China take on such a role at the start of Russia's military offensive, but there entreaties were refused

At the same time as Beijing delivered peace initiative, there was increasing talk concerning possible weapons supplies from China to Russia. Sullivan declared that the US sent Beijing a clear warning regarding any such steps. CIA Director William Burns claimed to CBS News that US intelligence has evidence that China is seriously considering the possibility of supplying weapons to Russia, but has not made a final decision yet. Both Beijing and Moscow deny the existence of such plans.

Previously, Secretary of State Antony Blinken had asserted that Chinese companies were already helping Russia fight Ukraine by providing non-lethal military assistance and assisting Moscow in avoiding Western economic sanctions Some Chinese organizations have already fallen under US sanctions, as a result. For example, on January 26, the US Treasury imposed restrictions against the Tianyi Research Institution (Changsha) and its subsidiary in Luxembourg for supposedly providing the Russian company Terra Tech with images of Ukraine from satellites equipped with synthetic-aperture radars (SAR). Terra Tech, in turn, allegedly transmitted the images to PMC Wagner.

Consequently, China reacted sharply to the West's attempt to interfere in its policy towards Moscow. While in Russia Wang Yi said that Chinese-Russian relations are rock solid and will withstand any test proposed by the evolving internaing.

"For a long time, China has believed in the strategic autonomy of Europe. But Europe is increasingly becoming an appendage of the American policy in containing China.
That's how it was with the sanctions: The EU imposed restrictions because of the situation in Xinjiang, but was very surprised to face countermeasures. And now Beijing is demonstrating that theoretically, it is able to take symmetrical action regarding the situation in Ukraine.
